START WORK ON TRIALS OF WAR LORDS

BERLIN, Feb. 21.—Preliminary proceedings in a number of cases of Germans accused of violations of the laws of war have already begun and progress is being made in the collection of documentary material, Dr. Schiffer, minister of justice, told the representative of the Zwickel Blatt yesterday. The minister said that accused persons would be tried at Leipzig by a court consisting of the customary seven judges.

German witnesses will be heard in accordance with the prescriptions of criminal trial regulations and witnesses will be examined abroad if they do not care to come to Germany. It was indicated a German examining magistrate would go to other countries to be present at the taking of evidence.

Accused persons who do not respond to the summons to appear before the imperial court will have to be arrested and German authorities will in any case do everything to expedite proceedings as far as possible. On the principle that each accused would necessarily have to be tried individually, Dr. Schiffer energetically emphasized the fact the government regarded it an affair of honor to punish those really guilty."

The government, however, was not obeying the mandate's will in carrying out this trial, he asserted, but was fulfilling the requirements of any ordered state and its own feeling of what was just."

The jury was in session three days this week and during the time examined 19 witnesses covering 50 cases, four of which were ignored.

More than half of the indictments returned today are held secret pending the arrival of the persons named in them. A number of the secret indictments are for alleged gambling violations. It is said, and that a number of prominent local business men have been caught in the net in this connection. It is reported.

The jury in a special report to the court called attention to the fact that all forms of gambling is going on in grand jury is also attended at the acts are all out of board.

Forty-six indictments were made public were the county and besides took a ring at moral condition of the county."

the following: WILL P. CURLEY, E. R. NORMAN and Floyd Herkoff, burglar and arsonist.

the home of J. H. Stevens at Mt. Joe on the night of Jan. 10 and carried away in an automobile where they were not again seen until the next day.

We recommend that the rule allowing dried almonds not to go on bonds of criminals be strictly enforced, and that all the forfeited bonds be collected promptly.

"The grand jury calls special attention to the fact that all forms of gambling is going on in Seaford County and we recommend a strict enforcement of the law against all forms of gambling, including the 'penny punch board' which the grand jury thinks is the most pernicious of all gambling in that it incites a spirit of gambing in the youth of our county. The defendant, it is claimed, "The defendant separately indicates that being implicated in the case was in itself

a great wrong."

Indictments were brought against O'Dell Lough,

Ernest Cole, Walter Lewis, Joseph

Brown, Ernest Percy, Oscar Lyons,

POLICE INVESTIGATING ACCIDENT

Chief of Police Distel has started an investigation to learn if possible the name of the driver of the automobile which struck Mrs. Ella Gable last night and injured her seriously.

Chief Distel has interviewed a number of persons living near the scene of the accident in an effort to obtain a bit more information about the accident.

"The practice of auto owners hitting people and then driving on past the scene of the accident is a common occurrence," Mr. Straus said today.

"The tragic death of Mrs. Gable was a blow to the city and saddened many hearts. Reckless driving must stop."

I have instructed the police to arrest every reckless driver and they will be against criticism.

In this fascinating story of a little blonde girl who loves a boy with true devotion, the heart interest is response and the suspense wonderfully compelling. Suite May Trueheart loves Will in Jenkins so well that when a policeman tries to keep his promise to send William to school, she sells butter and eggs and even barrows to raise funds for the purpose.

So it happens that William goes to college, but he is unaware that his good angel is Suite to whom he writes deserted letters.

So it happens that when he leaves college and finds a minister becomes to his home as pastor of the village church. Then the tragedy of Suite Suite's life is born. William meets a tiffly beautiful girl who repays his love by accepting the attention of less worthy men. But she is punished by Suite Suite, although she never has forgotten that she was the blower of flowers or the wedding of the town she loved, protects the erring wife, and it is only after the Interview that Suite Suite's great love and both their own happiness.

Sweet Little Gable plays the part of Suite Suite's wife, and her tearful scenes with the whistling husband are the chief attraction of Suite Suite's great success.

MISS DOLLY WISE

She is here to answer any and all questions concerning love, marriage, troubles, woes, etiquette, etc. Inquiries should be addressed to Miss Dolly Wise, care The Daily Times, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Dear Miss Wise—I see several cards on houses with the word "Respiratory" on them. Will you please explain what kind of disease it is. Also explain the difference between a Kodak and a camera?

SCHOOL GIRLS

"Respiratory" is not as bad as it sounds. You might call it nothing more than a bad cold. Respiration is the act or process of breathing and respiration that interferes with your breathing is called respiratory trouble. A camera is an apparatus so arranged that the image can be thrown upon a surface sensitive to light. A Kodak is a kind of portable photographic camera especially adapted for such work, in which a succession of negatives is made upon continuous roll of sterilized film. Kodak is the trade mark of the Eastman Kodak company, but is now popularly applied to almost any kind of camera.

Dear Dolly—Can you find space in your column for these "bits of thoughts"—illustrations that should do the heart good? If sincerely followed, to take a young girl as companion, who could assist a little with the housework. My husband works at night and I need someone for company. If you don't know of a young girl who would be glad to have a working girl, she could have the room for nothing.

I have been asked by half a dozen movie fans to publish the addresses of all the stars on the screen. They claim they cannot find them in the trade magazines. Individual names and addresses are not published in the magazines, but the companies are, and the stars can be addressed in care of the company they are playing with.

Mrs. Ella Gable Run Down By Auto; Dies In Hospital

Skull Was Fractured And Victim Fails To Regain Consciousness; Driver's Identity Is Unknown

Mrs. Ella Gable for years one of the city's best known school teachers, died in Hospital last night at eleven o'clock after suffering a serious fracture of the skull in an accident at Eleventh and Main streets about seven o'clock last night.

It is presumed that Mrs. Gable was struck and knocked down by an automobile, as she was crossing Lincoln street on her way to the home of her son, Paul Gable, who lives at 1733 Eleventh street.

She was in an unconscious condition when found and never regained consciousness.

She was removed from Schobell's grocery, where Drs. J. D. Jordan and Oscar Middlestadt attended her. They had her removed to Hospital, residing at once the seriousness of her condition. She was bleeding at the mouth and ears and was suffering untold pain when removed to the hospital.

Mrs. Gable was widely known and this morning when news of the accident death was heard, friends were shocked and deeply grieved, her deceased being a woman of lovable disposition and numberless dear friends.

She was born in this city May 7, 1890. Her maiden name was Ella Bishop, and she was the widow of the late William Gable.

Mrs. Gable was teacher in the public schools for about 30 years. She started teaching in June, 1885, in Primary Grade C at Lower Fourth street school. She taught until 1895, and then in 1902 some time after her husband's death, she again took up teaching.

One of the first persons to reach Mrs. Gable was Louis Steele, who was in his place of business at the time of the accident. He heard a com-

Mrs. Gable was principal of Offene street school for about ten years and had been principal of Lincoln school for about 8 years.

She is survived by her son, Paul, and a sister, Mrs. Nannie Ridderup, of Offene street; Charles Zoll of Offene street is a half brother and Elmer R. Cooks, a nephew of the deceased.

Mrs. Gable was a faithful member

Trinity church, and belonged to the Ladies' Aid Society and Ladies' Misionary Society of that church.

The funeral services will be held from the home 1011 Eleventh street at two o'clock Monday afternoon with Rev. N. E. Butler, of Trinity church, in charge. Burial will be made in Greenlawn.

Mrs. Gable was one of the city's most highly esteemed residents, and the news of her tragic death cast a pall of gloom over the city. She devoted much of her time in looking after the care of worthy children and virtually in charge of the distribution of shoes made annually by the Greeks. She was known and loved by almost every one and her kind deeds will linger long in the memories of those who knew this good woman, whose life was so cruelly snuffed out.

It was rumored today that automobile owners interested in the cause of the driver who failed to hold his machine, would conduct an investigation in the hopes of learning the identity of the guilty person.

Reputation is strong against the driver and every effort should be made to learn the driver's name.

MEMORIES OF BELOVED WASHINGTON AND LINCOLN EULOGIZED AT MEETING

When past and present pause to treat the discourse on his experiences as a chaplain with 35th Infantry or play the Third Division and the 11th Field Artillery.

Dr. Horst told many stories of the war which delighted the audience and were made more delightful because of the speaker's pleasing manner of expression.

He told of one of the bravest things he saw in France. "We were in the front line," he said. "My orderly and I occupied a dugout with about 25 wounded men. I looked out and saw 6 Germans emerging out of a small woods. 'Get your gun,' I called to my orderly, 'and let's do what we can to those six spudheads!'

"The man rushed out with his gun, and was just ready to fire when I stopped him. I noticed an American marching behind them. 'Stop,' I cried, 'they are prisoners!'

"In a little while they came up to the dugout where we were located. The Yankee captor had his left eye torn out. The blood was streaming down his face. 'Chaplain,' he said, 'can you relieve me of my prisoners?' I sent the prisoners back to the rear and snuffed the lad's wound with cotton. Then he told me his story. He had been captured by these same six Germans. They were marching him to the rear and stopped, tearing their guns against a tree, to get a drink. The doughboy, even faint with the loss of blood, grabbed one of the German's guns, reached the tables on his captors and marched them safely within his own lines."

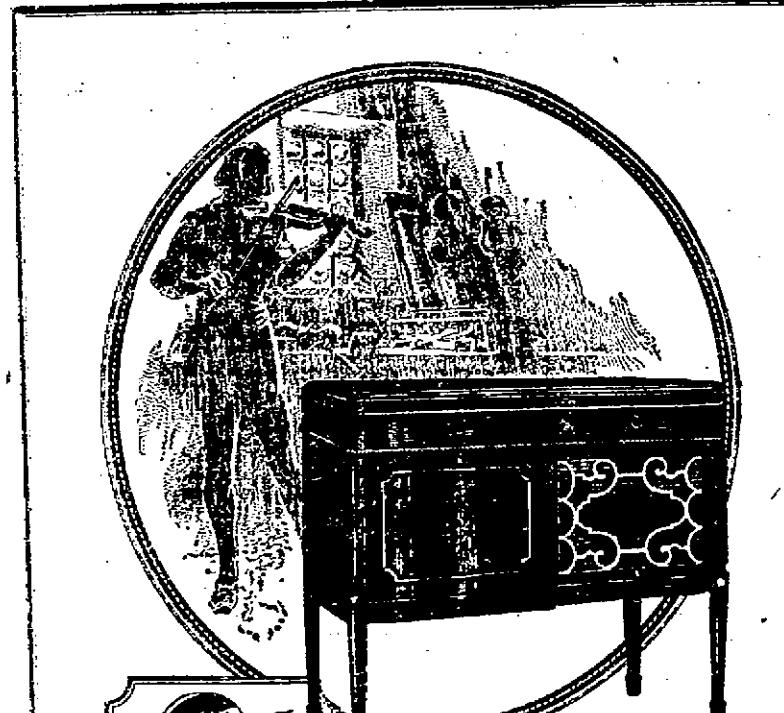

The first address of the evening was made by Comdr. J. J. Davidson, G. A. R., who spoke on "Americanism." Mr. Davidson spoke with all of the fire of the soldier of '61-'65, declaring that "Americanism, Patriotism, love for country, these come first."

"This union is great," he said, "but

The CHENEY

Tone, Quality—and Technique

A virtuoso could scarcely display his art with an ordinary violin or piano. Perfect technique alone does not make a master.

So with phonograph records. It is easy to play them—but the Cheney, like a Stradivarius violin, gives renditions new beauty. Its rich, majestic tones are unrivaled.

Acoustic principles, never applied before to phonographs, have set The Cheney unquestionably in a class apart.

HOOVER AND NO OTHER

HERBERT C. Hoover, one time world's food director and evidently a citizen of parts is in demand; it might be said doubly in demand.

There is a well-defined movement to make him the Democratic candidate for president, but there are some Republicans not disposed to let their opponents have the sole claim on him, so over in Indiana steps are being taken to place him on the Republican presidential preference ballot.

As for Mr. Hoover, modest and unassuming gentleman that he is doesn't seem to be at all stirred by this display of public adulation and all he will say is that he is going to see what the parties write in the platforms and what they offer in the way of progressive performance and that will be time enough for him to fix his political course.

Undoubtedly he has gained much publicity out of his prominent and effective connection with war activities, but how much popularity is another matter, though they do say advertising pays. There is one thing, however, that ought to help him in public favor and that is his position, altogether a common sense one and a right one. He doesn't believe in encouraging the panhandling European nations, as the Cincinnati Enquirer aptly designates them.勉强ly, and frankly, for it seems somewhat contradictory to his work as an almoner to all the peoples, he says it would be a colossal mistake for the United States to undertake to further finance its international men?" I remarked.

Mrs. Pardee, shrugging her lean shoulder off her thread with a snap. "There ain't much in that." (To be continued)

NEARING VANISHING POINT
T HE further the re-count of the state's vote on federal prohibition proceeds the smaller that negative majority gets to the naked eye, and betraying signs of vanishing altogether.

Starting out 479 tops ahead the wetts have gradually lost until nigh the distance that separates them from zero is only 229. In other words the drys have gained an even 250.

It is a rather singular fact, that since the first week of the count, begun about the first of the year, when gains were made by the wetts, the tide has turned steadily in favor of the drys. One thousand precincts have been contested by the drys and as only four hundred have been counted and these showing an increasing average of gain they confidently don't on wiping out entirely the adverse majority shown on the official count.

It must not be taken, however, that this would make a conclusive victory for them, as since in such an event as appears possible, the wetts would undoubtedly call for a re-count of the entire state, which they have a right to do, on the assumption that the contest opens up the entire matter as to how the state did actually vote.

The Servant Problem Is Still Unsolved, Says Pa

the world already, somebody has started the idea that in order to bathe in any ocean with a degree of seclusion, one must have a most elaborate wardrobe. It is a treat to see the "bathing windows" in the big department stores along Fifth Avenue and other shopping streets.

There is the bathing frock and the beach costume and the bath robe and hats and shoes and bags—for those flirting to Palm Beach. Velvets and silks and satyens, and satins and colored wools and beads, are just a few of the things which are being taken into the water at summery beaches this season.

A clever suit, a velvet of course, is said by the stores that sell such necessities, to be splendid for swimming under water—the water comes up looking just like a nice sleek seal. The bath suits are not hurt by their immersion it seems. It is easy to keep anything about bathless—in their original glory they resemble a rainbow which has "run" in the laundry.

Here's another: Ellis W. San Cura Ointment is such a marvel that it is sold in money-back plan.

It relieves itching, skin, tattoo, nose, ear, salt rheum, old running and festering sores, ulcers, boils, carbuncles, scrofulous piles, frosty feet, children's rashes and cracked skin. Only 25 cents a jar.

NEW ANGLE TO THE SHIP CONTROVERSY

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 21.—President Wilson's statement to the state disclosing that he had entered into a tentative agreement at Paris with the United States would pay the reparation organization the difference between the nation's merchant shipping loss during the war and the present value of seized German ships gave a new angle today to the general discussion in Congress of the ship controversy, precipitated by the recent efforts of the shipping board to dispose of the fleet of former German passenger liners.

Executive of the agreement, not yet made public, was disclosed by the president in a communication to his secretary concerning the disposition of the seized ships. The statement was sent to the Senate in reply to a resolution by Senator Brandegee, Republican of Connecticut, asking if it were true that such an understanding existed.

In explaining the agreement, the president stated it was conditioned on the approval of Congress, and in no wise would the title of the ships held by this country pass from the United States.

It simply provided, he explained, that all nations who came into possession of ships through capture or seizure should after indemnifying their own standard merchant tonnage losses during the war, put into the common the difference between their losses and the value of the ships, provided, of course, the ships so held exceeded the losses. This plan was to be applied to the German reparation set by the commission created by the peace treaty.

With the negotiations for the sale of the passenger ships have been well off, Chairman Payne, of the shipping board, today was going ahead with plans for the sale of the former German cargo vessels. Bids have been received by the board on 25 freighters.

START WORK ON TRIALS OF WAR LORDS

BERLIN, Feb. 21.—Preliminary proceedings in a number of cases of Germans accused of violations of the laws of war have already begun and progress is being made in the collection of documentary material, Dr. Schiffer, minister of justice, told the representative of the Zweifl Ullmann Blatt yesterday. The minister said that accused persons would be tried by a court consisting of seven judges.

German witness will be heard in accordance with the prescriptions of criminal trial regulations and witnesses will be examined abroad if they do not care to come to Germany. It was indicated a German examining magistrate would go to other countries to be present at the taking of evidence.

Accused persons who do not respond to the summons to appear before the imperial court will have to be arrested and German authorities will in any case do everything to expedite proceedings as far as possible. On the principle that each accused would necessarily have to be tried individually, Dr. Schiffer energetically emphasized the fact the government regarded it an affront to have to punish those really guilty.

The government, however, was not obeying the court's will in carrying out this trial, he asserted, but was fulfilling the requirements of any ordered state and its own feeling of what was just.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—With President Wilson's reply to the note of the allied powers on the Adriatic question almost ready for despatch, officials here have let it be known that they do not regard the situation as acute nor do they expect that the negotiations will take such a turn that the allied states would be forced to consider whether it could become a party to the treaty of Versailles.

SHOW-DOWN IN HOUSE ON RAIL BILL TODAY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Opposing sides representing both investors and factions of the railroad reorganization railroad employees had been trying to influence the bill since last stand in the house for months attempting to influence the bill to show a larger improvement.

The old question of government ownership also was expected to prove a sticking point, as organized labor had been accused of fighting the return of the roads, which the bill will control, in order to force the government to keep them permanently.

To assure disposition of the bill today, the house met an hour earlier than customary. Five hours having been allotted to debate, and with a series of roll calls in sight, the possibility of an early decision was blocked by Representative Bush, republican, Wisconsin, in charge of the measure, announced he would press the final vote so that the bill, if approved, might go to the Senate Monday for consideration Tuesday.

In addition to a majority of the democratic members lined against the bill largely because of the financial difficulties, there were members from both sides ready to support the bill because of the objections of organized labor. Several members were anxious of sending the bill back to conference under instructions to eliminate objectionable provisions, but the parliamentary session was to be a shadowy affair in the opposition's line up.

No announcement was made predicting the date as to what question would first be passed before the house on motion to rescind, but there were indications that an effort would be made to get several separate votes

No announcement was made predicting the date as to what question would first be passed before the house on motion to rescind, but there were indications that an effort would be made to get several separate votes

as to financial provisions and later as to the bill.

Supporters of the bill were confident of its approval by a substantial majority, but its opponents were willing only to conciliate a close vote.

The discussion intended to prove the impossibility of rescinding the admiralty provisions, but the parliamentary session was to be a shadowy affair in the opposition's line up.

HOOVER AND NO OTHER

HERBERT C. Hoover, one time world's food director and evidently a citizen of parts is in demand; it might be said doubly in demand.

There is a well defined movement to make him the Democratic candidate for president, but there are some Republicans not disposed to let their opponents have the sole claim on him, so over in Indiana steps are being taken to place him on the Republican presidential preference ballot.

As for Mr. Hoover, modest and unassuming gentleman that he doesn't seem to be at all turned by this display of public admiration and all he will say is that he is going to see what the parties write in the platforms and what they offer in the way of progressive performance and that will be time enough for him to fit his political course.

Undoubtedly he has gained much publicity out of his present and effective connection with war activities, but how much popularity is another matter, though they do say advertising pays. There is one thing, however, that ought to help him in public favor and that is his position, altogether a common sense one and a right one. He doesn't believe in encouraging the panhandling European nations, as the Cincinnati Enquirer aptly designates them. Bravely and frankly, for it seems somewhat contradictory to his work as an amateur to all the peoples, he says it would be a colossal mistake for the United States to undertake to further finance its late associates. Their rejuvenation lies not in more loans from a country, whose wealth they assume is inexhaustible, but in their own effort and work. Yes, the right and only way for them to pull themselves up is to economize and every man and everybody back to the limit of production.

Oddly enough, Italy, which would have been reckoned the last to fall into this view, is in hearty accord with it and announces that it isn't a modicum, she isn't even asking for assistance, but she is already soul and hand laboring for her own resurrection and is making inspiring progress therewith, with undaunted faith in herself.

This ought to shame the others into like effort and add another leaf to the laurels of the good Mr. Hoover.

THE MADNESS OF McCORMICK

AND I may say I regard the Ford machine as an international pest. It destroys more material than any other sink hole in the world. It is a waste of time and substance."

Not elegant language for anyone to use is it? Thou consider how unseemly it is to come from the mouth of a United States senator, who supposedly in seriousness and truth addressing his fellow members, aye, speaking to them that his words may go forth to the whole United States. Sadly too, it isn't exceptional to forth to the Senate floor—and under senatorial protection. The country end even a more brutal exhibition of it, when that other intrepid mother, Brandegee, arises in the Senate, and of no information of his own, but "upon the word of a friend" made a cowardly attack upon the President. The fact that his assumption was utterly improbable had no influence with Brandegee.

So this other man McCormick travels far out of the way to recklessly beneath the protest of another, without the shadow of reprobation or a grain of fact. True enough Ford puts the Chicago Tribune to mighty cost for libeling him and the McCormick family owns the Tribune, but his machine wasn't an issue in the suit, though doubtless, there were some hundreds standing about while the trial was going on. We are not prone to give Henry Ford any advertising, but the universally evident fact is that he gives far more value proportionately to buyers as any other manufacturer, most of who frankly admit that relatively he gives far more than do the makers of the limousines that rich senators roll in on their way to the capitol, there to scoff citizens, who have done something for their fellow men, and brought forth honest and useful inventions.

We haven't been to Chicago in recent years, so we know nothing of the cars used there, but we have been often through Illinois and as we met and were passed by "fun lizzies" loaded down to the guards with whole families, always apparently in the greatest glee, it occurred to us that the funniest thing in all the world was this car, it took so much out of the monotony of life and placed instead thereof so much variety and joy.

A United States senator is in mighty small business when he travels up before the whole nation and reviles it, but there are some mighty small things seen and heard in the United States senate these days.

Mrs. Ella Gable Run Down By Auto; Dies In Hospital

Skull Was Fractured And Victim Fails To Regain Consciousness; Driver's Identity Is Unknown

Mrs. Ella Gable, for years one of the best known school teachers in Portsmouth, died in Hampstead Hospital last night after crossing the intersection when at eleven o'clock after suffering a serious fracture of the skull in an accident at Eleventh and Lincoln streets about eleven o'clock last night.

It is presumed that Mrs. Gable was struck and knocked down by an automobile, as she was crossing Lincoln street on her way to the home of her son, Paul Gable, who lives at 1333 Eleventh street.

She was in an unconscious condition when found and never regained consciousness.

She was removed from Schoenert's grocery, Eleventh and Lincoln, to Hampstead Hospital, where physicians attempted to stave off death, the injury being so serious at the base of the brain that medical attention could not be given.

One of the first persons to reach Mrs. Gable was Louis Schoenert, who was in his place of business at the time of the accident. He heard a conversation outside and investigated just as he left the store a machine stopped in the street, several of the passengers getting out and walking at the side of Mrs. Gable just as Schoenert did so there.

Mrs. Gable was found lying several feet from the east curb of Lincoln street, and judging from where she was found, the most likely place was across the intersection when at eleven o'clock after suffering a serious fracture of the skull in an accident at Eleventh and Lincoln streets about eleven o'clock last night.

She was carried into the Schoenert grocery, where Drs. J. D. Jordan and Oscar Miskewitz attended her. They had her removed to Hampstead Hospital, realizing at once the seriousness of her condition. She was bleeding at the mouth and ears and was suffering awful pain when removed to the hospital.

Mrs. Gable was widely known and liked among the news of the accident and death was heard, friends were shocked and deeply grieved, the deceased being a woman of lovely disposition and commanding her friends by her magnetism.

She was born in this city May 7, 1860. Her maiden name was Ella Bishop, she was a widow of the late Lincoln Gable.

Mrs. Gable was teacher in the public schools for 37 years. She was a teacher before marriage and again taught after marriage and again passed away.

Mrs. Gable was principal of Ottendorf school for about ten years and had been principal of Lincoln school for about six years.

She is survived by her son, Paul, and a sister, Mrs. Nannie Hildner, of Ottendorf street. Charles Zoll of Ottendorf street is a half brother of the deceased.
